

Impressive acoustic performance achieved at new aparthotel

The recently opened four star Adagio Aparthotel in Birmingham, UK, has a mix of 108 studio and one bedroom apartments, all with kitchen facilities and many modern amenities. Throughout this new seven storey hotel, the client and architect both demanded high levels of acoustic performance.

To meet these requirements, when installing Amtico LVTs in all rooms, the InstaLay 30hg flooring installation system was specified. It was able to achieve impressive acoustic levels of 23dB / IIC55, reducing impact sound and creating a quiet environment throughout the building.

Manufactured from recycled rubber crumb, InstaLay also reduced sub-floor preparation times and was simply loose laid. The Amtico tiles were then rapidly installed onto InstaLay's unique self-adhesive membrane and could be walked on immediately. During a winter installation there was no need for any wet adhesives, which require minimum floor temperatures. In addition, InstaLay also provided a moisture tolerant layer over the concrete sub-floor.

InstaLay brought this project the following benefits:

- High acoustic performance (Impact Sound Improvement - 23dB / IIC55)
- A fast-track installation process covering 3,000m² / 32,300 ft²
- Clean installation procedure without any wet adhesives
- The creation of a warm and inviting flooring solution

The main contractor and the flooring installer were both impressed by the speed and ease of installation using InstaLay, which produced high quality results and helped the construction programme remain on target.
